Double Portion

Elisha is one of my favorite prophets. God called Elisha while he was working, plowing fields; Elisha followed God and he became a helper to Elijah. When Elijah was taken to God by the Fiery Chariot, he told Elisha that if he watched him go, he would get a double portion of the Spirit. Elisha watched him go; therefore, we call him the prophet of the double portion. Possibly, because of this, he performed some major miracles. I was asked if anyone else had performed the miracles that Jesus performed, so here are a few parallels.

Raising the Dead—The Shunammite's Son died, and his mother sent for Elisha. Elisha sent his servant to lay Elisha's staff on the boy, but he did not revive him, so Elisha came to the boy and laid on him, bringing him back to life. The interesting part of this miracle is that the child was conceived by the word of the prophet as she and her husband were old, and she was barren. (II Kings 4:8-37)

Feeding the Multitude—A man brought Elisha 20 loaves of barley and some fresh ears of grain. Elisha told his servant to give them to the people so that they may eat. His servant said, "What, will I set this before a hundred men?" But Elisha instructed him to do it, and they fed everyone and had some left over. (II Kings 4:42-44)

Healing the Sick—The most famous miracle of Elisha was the healing of the leper Namaan. Namaan was not an Israelite, he was from Aram, and a New Testament reference to Elisha is due to this incident. Jesus was making the point that God's mercy was not restricted to the Israelites in Luke 4:27 where he states, "And there were many in Israel with leprosy in the time of Elisha the prophet, yet not one of them was cleansed—only Naaman the Syrian." The healing of Naaman is a wonderful example of obedience to God. (II Kings 5:1-14)

The widow's oil that never ran out, the poisonous gourds made harmless, and the floating axe, to name a few. Elisha was a powerful prophet, a working man that God made great.
